

A Savings Bank Milestone

January 31st, 1889—26 years ago—the Lamoille County Savings Bank and Trust Company was organized.

To say that in matter of growth this institution has out-run everything everywhere in the line of village savings banks is to state a truth which Vermonters everywhere are pleased to talk about.

One of the large banks of Toronto, Ontario, has recently written one of the officials of the Hyde Park bank expressing its curiosity to know "how the thing was done." Indeed, bankers not only in Vermont and Ontario but elsewhere have been simply amazed at the growth of this bank. They can't see how it were possible for a little country village with a population of only 423 to show a growth that has placed the bank so far ahead of all competitors occupying a similar position as to make it unique, unprecedented and notable as the largest bank in the world in a country village.

The answer is simple and one word tells the story—that word is CONFIDENCE.

The people not only of Hyde Park and Lamoille County but of Vermont generally, from Massachusetts to Canada line, from the Connecticut River to Lake Champlain, have come to talk of the phenomenal growth of the Hyde Park Bank and were you to ask Vermonters why they made their deposits in the Hyde Park Bank instead of elsewhere, they would tell you substantially this: We know the men who manage that bank; we know they are painstaking, cautious and conservative; we know that the allurements of all those get-rich-quick schemes which so often tempt men to sacrifice safety to principal for high rates of interest, have never captivated the managers of the Hyde Park Bank.

Money is timid and easily scared; it is notorious that upon the slightest provocation it goes into hiding, but once let the public be assured that everything about a Bank is perfectly safe and they pour their savings into it without stint.

It is perfectly safe to send money to this Bank, either by personal or bank check, registered letter, or postal or express money order.

In its more than twenty-six years of existence not a penny sent to it by mail was ever lost.

The Hyde Park Bank pays the taxes on all deposits, large or small. If you wish to know as to the assets, liabilities, surplus, etc., of this Bank, all you have to do is write to the President, Carroll S. Page, or the Treasurer, F. M. Culver, Hyde Park, Vt., and you will get a prompt reply.—NEWS AND CITIZEN.

LAWRENCE URIE

On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 23, 1915, Lawrence Urie died at his home one mile from South Albany, after an illness of a little less than a week. On the Saturday before his death he seemed to be in his usual health and went out for a walk. That night he was taken with a chill, which rapidly developed into pneumonia. He failed rapidly until the end. Mr. Urie spent his entire life on the farm where he died. He was born on June 23, 1836, in the same house in which he died. His parents had come there from Lowell, Mass., in 1833. The house stands on the boundary line between Albany and Craftsbury but he was registered a resident of Craftsbury. He was married Jan. 1, 1861 to Miss Mary Anderson of South Albany. Mrs. Urie died four years ago. The following children survive: John A., James N., Thomas M., and Clarence W., all of whom live near South Albany. Two of their children, Mrs. George Young of West Glover and Lawrence G. died several years ago. He was the last member of a family of ten. He had six brothers and three sisters. Mr. Urie was one of the most highly esteemed citizens of this community. He was very quiet and unassuming, yet very active and industrious and was one of the most successful farmers in this section. His Scotch blood gave him a rugged character and thrifty habits. His high Christian principles and firm devotion to the right made him a citizen of high value. He was greatly devoted to his home and family and his family was devoted to him. He will be greatly missed in the home and in the church at East Craftsbury, of which he was a devoted member and one of its most generous supporters. He and his family gave over $1200 toward the new church building at East Craftsbury and its equipment. He leaves behind an honored name and the memory of righteous manhood. The funeral was held at his late home on Tuesday, Jan. 26, and was attended by a large number of friends and neighbors. The burial was at East Craftsbury.
